

ROBO Global Robotics & Automation ETF (ROBO) Celebrates 4 Years on Nasdaq With $1.5 Billion Under Management

The First Robotics Fund Marches Into Fifth Year

DALLAS – Oct. 24, 2017 – The ROBO Global Robotics & Automation ETF \(Nasdaq: ROBO\) is heading into its fifth year of trading with the wind at its back, having attracted over $1.5 billion in assets since inception on Oct. 22, 2013. Year-to-date, it's delivered a total return of 37.73 percent.*

Comprised of 85 securities that span 14 countries, the fund invests in the robotics, automation and artificial intelligence (RAAI) sector, as defined by the ROBO Global Robotics & Automation Index. A team of financial and robotics experts, including five Ph.D.s, constructed the Index that the ROBO ETF tracks.

"From the beginning, our goal was to compile a world-class team of researchers and investment experts so investors had a turnkey way to access the exciting robotics revolution," said Travis Briggs, CEO of ROBO Global U.S.

ROBO Global's Index has been licensed across four continents, and Briggs noted that the team remains interested in finding and working with new partners.

"The response to the concept of investing in robotics has been overwhelming and gratifying, and we are committed to dedicating 100 percent of our resources to understanding and unlocking the potential value of this multi-decade investment opportunity," Briggs added.
